CHILDREN OF THE SUN

A dedication to Francis Carson

Francis Carson

From the Spokane Tribe of Indians, Washington State

This man is a living botanical encyclopedia. His wide knowledge of nature is a joy listening to and its fascinating to watch how easily he can walk around and pick a plant he knows exactly how to benefit from. His traditional teachings should be passed on so future generations also can enjoy a practical use of any plant right outside of their doorstep.

The song “Children of the sun” is made to honour and bring attention to Francis Carson of the Spokane Indian Nation. Spokane is the second largest city in Washington and the name, Spokane, means Children of the sun. Francis is of the most welcoming souls we have met, and as a former “whipman” (person who maintain order during ceremonial dance) and medicine man, he has earned huge respect in his community. Luckily for us, he has become a trusted friend. This song is about him and his homeland.
